

Links to Other Sites on Alzheimer's

I've gotten a number of requests from other websites to put their link on my website. It's basically a good idea, but I won't be able to evaluate them fully. So the following are some of the links requested (and some others I know of) that I hope will be helpful; they are all, as far as I know, non-profits. If you think they are inappropriate or not helpful, or if the links no longer work, please contact me.

General Websites of Alzheimer's Organizations

Aging Care ; Connecting people caring for elderly parents

Alzheimer's Association : Most well-known of Alzheimer's organization. Good source of support groups in your area.

Alzheimer's.net : A source of caregiving tips and Alzheimer's news

Video

of David's 4-min talk at a conference on care of Alzheimer's around the world.

Blogs Written by People with Dementia

<http://vickisvoice.tv> "Vicki's Voice" Blog written by a person with Frontotemporal Dementia with some entries by another person who seems to be a caregiver.

Blogs Written By and For Care Givers

<http://www.alzheimerspirit.blogspot.com/> A nurse who cared for her mother with Alzheimer's writes on a variety of topics

www.thealzheimerspouse.com : caregiver who has a regular blog

www.mesothelioma.com/blog/authors/cameron : caregiver whose wife had a serious cancer mesothelioma.

Books

www.blueskywhiteclouds.com A book of pictures with simple sentences, not for children but specifically for adult patients with dementia. Written by a man whose mother has had Alzheimer's for twelve years.

Dementia Care Training (I have not evaluated these)

<http://www.hcinteractive.com/ProfessionalCARES?GroupID=3>

<http://www.nccdp.org/> Seems they have a training program!

<http://alzbrain.org/pdf/handouts/2059.%20communicATIOn%20TIPS%20FOR%20DEMENTIA%20PATIENTS.pdf>

A long list of pretty good suggestions for caring for people with AD. If doctors, nurses or other caregivers were interested, this might be a good sheet to give them. (Please let me know if there are problems with these suggestions.)

<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2464807/> Interesting article about physicians dealing with patients experiencing dementia

Non-Profit Services

MemoryCare : a non-profit in Western North Carolina that provides specialized medical care for older adults with dementia and education and counseling for their caregivers.

For-Profit Services (I have not evaluated these)

Elmcroft Assisted Living facility

Others

National Institutes of Health .

<http://www.insurancelibrary.com/impaired-risk/alzheimers/> :website that provides free expert insurance answers to consumers on topics such as Alzheimer's disease. (I have not evaluated this.)
